IDEALS OF EDUCATION

NO PHASE OF LIFE BUT IS MUCH INFLUENCED BY EDUCATION

Education touches life at every point. If human life can be compared to a circle, then education may be likened to the radii which, drawn from a common point within that circumference, touch the circumference equally and in all directions. There is no phase of life that is not influenced in a greater or less degree by education. Even in war the profound influence of education is manifest. The well-educated German hustles and maneuvers the illiterate Russian out of strong positions; drives him like a sheep and seems to slaughter or capture him with little difficulty.

What wonder that the educators of Los Angeles and its vicinity are deeply concerned at present with ideals of education and are seriously debating the best methods of training the raw material in the schools so as to bring it to the highest state of efficiency for the work of life. Glendale has already taken the lead in this work in the Union high school, as shown in the interesting articles by Mr. A. R. Oliver now appearing in this paper.

Education is both an end and a means to an end. It should so train the mind as to give it a broad outlook on human affairs; to make good citizens and also to fit each scholar according to his or her natural gifts for that vocation for which such scholar is best fitted.

Specific education is once more coming into its own. The beginnings of education are concerned with the preparation of the educand for a particular walk in life. At this point modern educational thought takes issue with out-of-date mechanical theories and practice of education. Too great a part of education has often consisted, throughout the past half century, of cramming into the youthful mind crude masses of elementary learning without regard to their proper assimilation or their bearing on the mental development of the scholar, and with equal disregard of what might be the life's work of the pupil.

That era is past. Educators on every hand recognize the necessity for specific education toward which the acquisition of what is known as "the three R's" is but the avenue. Under this modern system the education of the scholar proceeds simultaneously on two lines. A certain portion of the school day is devoted to learning to do one thing in order that the educand may be able to do something else; and our schools are wisely being developed into places where the pupils are prepared for various kinds of life work.

There is much truth in the oldest theories of education which insisted that the only way to learn to do a thing was to do it. The ancient Greeks did not teach the theory of arms. They set their youth to learn the practice of the sword and spear; they formed them in the phalanx and set them to acquire the actual practice of the field. In like manner the Roman youth was exercised with arms so much heavier than those to be used in warfare that when they came to the real necessities of war they found it easy to bear and use the lighter armor and weapons of actual conflict.

The Greeks also taught their people to take part in the actual work of law-making. So, too, our modern educators are aiming at sending forth from the schools young men and women who have been exercised in whatever work they intend to pursue throughout life.

Under this system "the three R's" have ceased to be a mere end, but have become a means to an end. It is recognized that the art of living is a vocation and that while the pupil must be an educated person, he or she must also be educated for this or that walk in life.

Sir John Lubbock, one of the most advanced thinkers along this line, says pertinently that "the three R's" are "knife and fork" studies. Just as a knife and fork are necessary adjuncts to the proper and sanitary assimilation of food, so "the three R's" are necessary to the proper acquisition of further studies which he terms "dinner studies." On this theory mathematics is a "knife and fork" study. It gives the pupil the tools or implements by means of which he acquires the practical use of such other studies as mensuration, navigation, astronomy, engineering, agriculture and many more of the practical subjects that must be used in specific occupations.

When agricultural colleges were first instituted in the United States the most severe limitations were set on the courses of study to be pursued. By and by it was found that

R. D. WHITE RE-ELECTED

SCHOOL TRUSTEES UNANIMOUS IN FAVOR OF PRESENT PRINCIPAL

The city school trustees met in regular session Thursday evening at 7:30 in their office in the Intermediate school, with Dr. J. E. Eckles, president; John Todd, clerk, and L. E. Brockman, present.

Mrs. Charles H. Toll, president of the Parent-Teacher federation, was present and in a very able address presented a petition asking the board to re-employ Superintendent White as supervising principal of the Glendale schools.

The teachers, through the clerk of the board, also presented a petition with all their signatures attached, asking that Superintendent White be retained.

Mr. Lyons of the Jasmine Lyons Disinfecting company of Los Angeles was present and secured the contract for furnishing soapstone for the coming school year at one dollar per gallon.

C. W. Kent & Son were given the contract to put in an additional cesspool at the Central avenue school at a cost of $50.

The motor at the Central avenue school was reported burned out and Mr. Todd was authorized to purchase a new one and have same installed.

Heretofore it had been the custom to hire a transfer to distribute supplies, etc., to the various schools. Superintendent White was given permission to hire a horse and buggy for this purpose when making his usual rounds of the schools.

Superintendent White, in conjunction with Architect Westlake, were authorized to secure estimates and bids on the repairing and extending into the new part of the buildings the private telephone system and the automatic signal system at the Intermediate school.

It seemed to be a question in the minds of the trustees whether or not they had a right to use school funds to pay the expense of making a float to represent the Glendale schools in the grand school pageant of the schools of Los Angeles and Los Angeles county to be held in that city on June 3.

The trustees are very anxious that our schools be represented in this pageant and appointed Mr. Brockman and Superintendent White to interview the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations with a view of raising money with which to defray the expense of a float, as they feel that it would be very beneficial to the city of Glendale, as an advertisement, and we all agree that Glendale needs all it can get in the way of publicity.

A communication was received from the state compensation insurance bureau wherein they stated that they had seen in the columns of the Glendale Evening News that the board had been advised by County Superintendent Keppel that it was not necessary that the board take out insurance on their employees and seemed to be surprised that such advice had been given and were very positive that such insurance should be taken out at once; however, the board decided inasmuch as this year's work is almost finished and having had their instructions from Superintendent Keppel, they concluded to postpone the matter indefinitely.

Trustee Brockman was delegated to represent the board at the regular annual convention of the trustees of the school districts of Los Angeles county to be held in Los Angeles Saturday, May 15th.

Bids for supplies and equipment for the sloyd department were submitted by the Glendale Hardware company at $156.46 and Cornwell & Koltz at $171, the bid of the Glendale Hardware company being accepted and the goods ordered delivered at once.

Contractor Robertshaw presented his bills for the building and institution of the lockers in the Intermediate school, said bills to the amount of $558.75 being allowed and ordered paid.

C. W. Kent & Son presented two bills for construction work, one of $1465.50 and one of $1375, both of which were allowed and ordered paid.

The balance of the claims were laid over until next meeting. The board then went into executive session to consider the proposition of hiring teachers for the coming year, but little was done in this line except electing a supervising principal. Prof. Richardson D. White, the present incumbent, was unanimously elected for the coming year at a salary of $2100, a raise of $100 over last year.

The board passed the following resolution: "That it is the policy of the board in selecting teachers to re-employ those who are now teaching in Glendale where they have given satisfaction and proved them-

PATRONS' DAY

BROADWAY PUPILS AND THEIR TEACHERS ENTERTAIN PARENTS

Thursday the teachers and pupils of the Broadway school were at home to their patrons and friends. An exhibit representing the year's work was displayed in every room from the first to the sixth grades, inclusive, and the ungraded room. All the wall space was covered with specimens of art work, cardboard sloyd and all lines of written work. There were hammocks and rag rugs in the second grade, yarn rugs in the third grade and reed and raffia baskets in the fourth grade. The fifth and sixth grades made a fine display of wood work by the boys and sewing and crochet work by the girls.

The third and fourth grades each had a doll house completely furnished by the pupils of each room. The reception-room, living-room, dining-room, kitchen, bath and bedrooms had all the appointments of a modern house.

An interesting program was given on the campus in front of the building at 1:30, consisting of the following well rendered numbers.

Songs, first grade—(a) A Little Shadow, (b) Tick Tock, (c) The Clockwork Man.

Songs, second grade—(a) The Woodpecker, (b) Awakening, (c) Swing Song.

Physical exercise drill, boys of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

Songs, third grade—(a) May Time, (b) In a Boat, (c) The Oriole's Nest. Songs, fourth grade—(a) Trillium, (b) Woods in May, (c) Welcome, Sweet Springtime.

Singing games, first grade. Songs, fifth grade—(a) Gladness of Spring, (b) Sweet May.

Flower wand drill, girls of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

Songs, sixth grade—(a) Fairies' Invitation, (b) Nature's Music, (c) Morning Song.

May pole drill, boys and girls of the second and third grades.

SUBSTANTIAL INSTITUTION

One of the institutions in the city of Glendale of which the city should feel proud is the Glendale sanitarium. The building and grounds have a very commanding appearance, the grounds are kept neat, the building is kept in good repair and both are ably managed. There are many people in Glendale who were first attracted here on account of this institution. Whoever has come in close touch with the management of the Glendale sanitarium has only words of praise to speak for this institution. The physicians and surgeons employed at the sanitarium rank high in their profession. The nurses are well trained and work with a conscientious interest which causes their service to be invaluable.

The existence of the sanitarium in this community is of great value to those in need of superior treatment for their physical ills. The treatments provided for the patients and others who may arrange for them are of untold benefit to those availing themselves of the privileges afforded and the business end of the institution is ably looked after in a way to make it an asset to the community. Such a substantial institution cannot but be the means of bringing people here and as such an attraction is of untold value. The people of Glendale should appreciate the worth of the sanitarium to the community.

EVERYBODY GOING

The following young ladies will preside over the punch bowl at the "booster tea" to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, 106 Orange street, Saturday afternoon: Miss Aileen Freeman, Miss Margaret Gregg, Miss Gladys Anderson, Miss Maybeth Pigg, Miss Winifred Jones, Miss Helen MacMullin, Miss Grace Beach and Miss Marian Dinsmore. The afternoon affair will be held on the lawn and the hours are from 3 to 5.

An especially fine program has been prepared for the evening when the Nevins Trio will entertain. It will be good news for those who wish to attend this affair that the electrical parade, which is to be given in Los Angeles on Saturday evening, will be repeated next Wednesday evening and it is expected that since this is the case Glendale people will be loyal enough to attend this home entertainment on Saturday evening. The evening program begins at 8. Members of the executive committee who can do so are asked to meet at 7 o'clock as there are some important details to be worked out.

selves efficient in their work the past term.

No further business, the board adjourned to meet Thursday evening, May 13, at 7:30 o'clock.

UNITY OF CIVIC SPIRIT

MUST SINK INDIVIDUAL LIKES AND DISLIKES IN THE COMMON GOOD

De Quincey, the famous English essayist, in his graphic story of the strenuous life of Richard Bentley, the great critical student of Greek texts, tells how one day when on a walking tour through the Cumberland hills his guide brought him to a little gap in the secret recesses of the mountains. Before him serenely shone the sunlight on a dark blue lake, nestling in the very bosom of the rugged peaks. It was the home of a little community of seven families. On every side lay their acres of cultivated ground.

"What an ideal spot!" exclaimed the essayist. "How sweetly secure these friendly cottages stand together. How beautifully serene and peaceful must be the lives of those humble cottagers in this scene so remote and safe from the care and strife of the great cities. Surely here if anywhere one may look for the peace of God which passeth all understanding!"

"Yes," said his guide, "the place is lovely and quiet and affords everything that can sustain human life; but it is a fact that some time ago those seven families fell out over some trivial question and now not one of those close neighbors will speak to another. Here all is enmity and strife."

It is sadly true that man often mars the works of the Almighty, and there is frequent and apt illustration of the words of the old hymn, "Where every prospect pleases and only man is vile." Many a lovely spot in the United States endowed with natural surroundings that should tend toward an ideal life of peace and happiness is turned by human passions and human hatreds into an earthly likeness of Gehenna.

Without harmony and unity of civic life a city endowed with unrivaled natural advantages may remain stagnant and unprogressive. The very soul of all civic progress and success is unity of spirit.

California has some striking examples of the disintegrating and destructive tendencies of civic discord. One lamentable case of a small city by the sea, not more than thirty miles from Glendale, will occur to most of us in this connection; and even the great city at our doors affords present proof of the evils of civic disunion. Where divisions always reign there can be no true progress. Where harmony prevails the course of civic life is as the morning light which shineth more and more unto the perfect day.

Glendale is a city favored by divine providence with more than the common share of natural privileges. Nestling at the foot of its picturesque hill background, it enjoys the purest of atmospheres. No poisonous smoke fumes pollute its air. Its water supply ranks in health-giving qualities with the very best in the United States. Everywhere fragrant orange groves give forth their rich perfume to the delectation of the sense. Its soil is so fertile and rich that it brings forth abundantly with the simplest cultivation. Civic wisdom has laid out its streets on a generous scale of width; and beauty is everywhere.

Lying close to the great city, yet far enough removed from it to escape its evils, it has enjoyed unexampled opportunity to grow in the best qualities of civic life. It has done so. Crime is practically unknown. The saloon with its concomitant evils has never gained entrance here. Its children can grow up free from evil influences of all kinds.

Standing as it does on a natural scenic high road to the sea, which is likely some day to become a favorite route of sightseeing travel, it should grow in civic importance and value as each year passes over its head.

Nothing except the presence of deterrent forces in its own midst can prevent the march of Glendale to its manifest destiny. It should become a widely known health resort. It should develop into a great educational center. It may be and should be known throughout the length and breadth of the land as a most desirable spot for the best kind of family life.

Only one thing can prevent this destiny—civic discord. Let that evil spirit once find lodgment here and Glendale may bid farewell to all its visions of greatness and all its dreams of progress. "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

Civic life is simply the life of a greater human family. Dissension in the family means the ultimate breaking up of the home. Dissension in civic life means the disintegration of all the forces that make for

TROPICO ITEMS

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB ELECTS—SOCIAL CIRCLES ARE VERY ACTIVE

The Tropico Thursday Afternoon club held a very interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. A. H. Gaarder on Glendale avenue Thursday afternoon. Despite the threatening weather, there was a goodly attendance. There being no candidate for president of the club and the present presiding officer, Mrs. Charles A. Barker, being a candidate for vice-president, no election for these two offices was held. Mrs. Harry Woolsey was elected corresponding secretary, Mrs. Henry T. Goodwin recording secretary, Miss Ida M. Meyers treasurer, and Mrs. Joseph H. Webster member-at-large. Business of importance relating to the club affairs was transacted, after which an interesting program was rendered. Miss Ethel Phillips of the Cummock school of expression gave several readings. Light refreshments were served at the close of the program. Mrs. Gaarder was assisted by Mrs. Mary Ayers, Mrs. A. P. Stone, Mrs. Frank E. Peters and Dr. Jessie A. Russell. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Clyde R. Carmack on Central avenue. This will be an open meeting.

Mrs. Dwight Griswold, chairman of the civic section of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon club, reports the recent sale of pencils by this section for the benefit of the municipal playgrounds of Tropico has netted $37. There remains several dozen more pencils to be sold and Mrs. Griswold and her committee are endeavoring to dispose of these remaining few.

There never was a movement, whether civic or social, that was started in Tropico that has met with such general favor and enthusiasm as the bonfire supper and general "jolly-up" time that marks the completion of the municipal playgrounds and which occurs Friday afternoon and evening, May 14, on the playgrounds at the Magnolia street school building. Mrs. Ella Richardson reports that all the committees are working very earnestly in this good cause.

The card party announced in The News on Thursday is given under the auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star—O. E. S.—and not as stated. The card party is given complimentary to Miss Fredonia Borthick, the worthy matron of Glen Eyrie chapter, and will be given Wednesday evening, May 12th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Beamon on South Maryland avenue in Glendale. All interested in the queen contest should be present and enjoy the game of five hundred and thus aid in the cause.

Mrs. C. H. Phillips left for San Francisco Thursday evening, where she will enjoy a visit as the guest of her sister and the Panama-Pacific exposition. Mrs. Phillips will also represent the Tropico Thursday Afternoon club at the state convention of women's clubs. Dr. Jessie A. Russell, who is also a delegate from the club to the state convention, will leave later, going by boat to San Francisco.

Rev. O. P. Sheldon of Los Angeles, formerly of Tropico, was the guest of Mr. Samuel A. Sharpe Thursday. Rev. Sheldon was returning from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Pratt at their ranch home near Burbank.

ATTEND BERKELEY FESTIVITIES

Miss Margaret Nichols of the Monte Vista apartments went to Berkeley Wednesday to attend the festivities incident to the commencement exercises of the university. Miss Nichols was a former student at the university and will attend various class and society reunions and affairs. The exposition is open free today to the students and tomorrow there will be the big barbecue and exercises on the campus. The exercises proper will be held next week.

REAL BUSY STORE

The proprietor of the Evening News dropped into the store of the Tropico Mercantile company this forenoon on a matter of business, and he found that store is an exceedingly busy place. Six or seven full-grown men were at work filling grocery orders and just believe it, they were hustling.

J. Herbert Smith, the proprietor, was as active as anyone in the bunch. The Tropico Mercantile company are heavy advertisers in the Evening News and that they get results is very evident from the great business the firm is doing. Good business management has brought the Tropico Mercantile company to be the foremost business concern in the San Fernando valley.

LUSITANIA SUNK

GERMAN SUBMARINES ACTIVE—1200 AMERICAN PASSENGERS IN PERIL

Germany scored a telling point in her fight with Great Britain when one of the kaiser's submarines sunk the magnificent Atlantic liner, the Lusitania, this morning. The scene of the tragedy was the northeast coast of Ireland, which has been a favorite hunting ground for the Teutonic submarines during the course of the war.

The Lusitania was one of the largest and most modernly equipped of the trans-Atlantic liners and was armed with modern five-inch rifles. It was one of the vessels subsidized by the British government on the condition that it should assume the role of an armed cruiser on the outbreak of war.

On board the Lusitania were 1200 American passengers. Among them was Alfred Vanderbilt. Up to the moment of going to press no further news was obtainable. It is therefore impossible to state whether there was any loss of life.

In all probability the Lusitania was sunk by a submarine, though the first reports are not clear on that point.

In view of President Wilson's unequivocal statement that the United States would not view with equanimity the sinking of American vessels or the destruction of American life by German war vessels, it is possible that serious complications may follow this hostile act.

GLENDALE UNION HIGH SCHOOL AWARDS PINS FOR FAITHFUL WORK

At the Glendale Union high school today high scholarship was awarded in fitting manner. At the afternoon assembly Miss Ethel Hume Flood of the faculty took charge of the meeting and presented gold honor pins to the following seniors who have done efficient honor work in their studies during the past four years:

J. Purman Bennett, Gwendolen Claffin, Elliott G. Colby, Grace Crampton, Kathleen Dodge, Vivian Engle, Dorothy Hobbs, H. Darwin Kirschman, Dorothy Koethen, Theo. Koethen, Benjamin Nichols, Merle Oliver, Cecelia Petersen, Morse Pree-man, Edith Watanen and Florence Wheeler.

It is indeed an honor to be the possessor of a gold honor pin, for it means that the student's work has been above the average of ninety in the required number of solids during each year of high school work.

Twenty-five per cent of the senior class were honor students for the entire four years, a record never before achieved in the honor roll of the school.

In marching into the auditorium, the honor students of all classes brought up the rear of their section, wearing the insignia of their class.

Those awarded bronze pins in the B-9 class were William Balthis and Margaret Taylor.

HONOR INDIANA GUESTS

Mrs. C. S. Westlake of 1458 Oak street was hostess at a pretty luncheon Wednesday when twelve ladies were entertained in honor of her guests, Mrs. Heatherington, her sister, of Logansport, Ind., and Miss Baker, her niece, of Muncie, Ind. The ladies found their places by means of pretty hand-painted place-cards at the perfectly appointed table which was brightened by a pretty centerpiece of American Beauty roses. Covers were laid for Mrs. D. H. Smith, Mrs. Harry Woolsey, Mrs. Frank McKenney, Mrs. Flora Pixley, Mrs. O. E. Clemens, Mrs. Herbert Smith, all of Glendale and Tropico, and Mrs. Harry Hill and Mrs. Young of San Jose, Mrs. Hughes of Los Angeles and Mrs. Young of Alameda.

J. O. C. MEETING

The regular meeting of the J. O. C. class of the First M. E. church was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Laura Erling, 117 North Louise street. Officers elected for the ensuing year were: Mrs. Alba Starkey, president; Mrs. Nell Case, vice-president; Mrs. Charlotte Goss, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arrington, recording secretary, and Miss Grace Case, treasurer.

After the business of the meeting was transacted a social session was held and enjoyed by all.

pupils came into those colleges ill-prepared for the acquisition of the knowledge there imparted.

The "knife and fork" studies that should have been thoroughly acquired at the elementary school had been but imperfectly assimilated. Every now and then the pupils came to a full stop for lack of the proper implements for acquiring the "dinner studies" of agriculture. It became necessary to install an English course and then a mathematical course, and so on until now the agricultural colleges of the country have complete courses in all branches of study, in order to fit the pupils for the proper acquisition of the agricultural course.

Business colleges had similar experience. Founded to supply instruction that was not given in the common schools, they found it necessary to teach the elements, "the three R's," in order to render their pupils efficient.

It is thus wisely urged by advanced educators that the schools of the land must proceed on two lines. "The three R's" must be thoroughly taught in order that the pupils may be completely equipped for the pursuit of other studies that will fit them for their vocations in life. Vocational studies will be pursued simultaneously with elementary studies. Every school will become, more or less, a polytechnic establishment. The pupil will be given opportunity to acquire by actual practice the principles of that vocation for which he or she is best fitted.

Dr. E. Davenport, one of the most thoughtful of modern educators, says: "There is no class of occupation that is followed by large masses of people that should not be brought into the schools and taught as fully as circumstances permit. I would compel every student to devote not less than one-quarter and not more than one-half of school time to these occupational lines."

While this, in its present application, is truly a modern development it had its counterpart in the old English and German guild schools. The teachers of the guild schools of the middle ages did not devote the early years of school children to mere book learning. They gave specific opportunities to those who had specific aptitudes. They discovered the particular aptitude of each pupil and after a certain amount of preliminary training, apprenticed him to that trade or calling and exercised him in it while his book training went on during a certain portion of the day.

Under this system were trained the thorough workmen, the craftsmen who built the enduring monuments that survive in the old cathedrals of Europe. Those were the men who built the old bridges that still stand; who carved the artistic woodwork of ancient buildings; who made the inimitable stained glass that still adorns many ancient interiors; men the excellence of whose work is still to be seen in the massive pile of Notre Dame in Paris, Cologne cathedral in Germany, and the mighty structure of Yorkminster in England, with its magnificent and inspiring west front.

Modern work does not lie along those lines. The constructive genius of the age has to meet demands for quickness and aptitude in meeting the needs of modern cities, with their congested streets; the construction of railroads, with difficult grade problems; working with the modern material, structural iron in the building of bridges, and the unrearing of such marvelous structures as the Woolworth building in New York City, where lack of ground space forces the buildings skyward; the handling of such stupendous problems as the tunneling of the river at New York and the swinging of the wonderful series of bridges across the river there.

However, no matter what may be the particular vocation to which the pupil may be called, it is the function of the school to discover it and to give the pupil opportunity to develop his particular gift.

If necessary this opportunity should be at the command of the pupil even after the usual school hours. Boys with mechanical bent would find in the open school workshop profitable employment for hours that are too often wasted or used for unprofitable amusement.

Under the modern vocational system we may expect to see the development throughout the nation of a large body of highly trained experts, who will be able to compete with and even excel the specialists of Germany in those walks wherein the United States is now deficient. The present great European war has brought those deficiencies clearly to the national mind and the nation looks to the schools to meet the emergency and to make the country independent of foreign nations in all branches of manufacture as it is already in all branches of agriculture.

GIFTS WILL BE GIVEN HUNDRED LITTLE GIRLS SATURDAY

The Munson Drug company of this city will present free to every little girl bringing her doll to their store tomorrow (Saturday) morning a miniature hot water bottle, which will hold and keep water hot the same as the regular size bag. Several weeks ago the Munson store advertised the same gift proposition, which made such a hit with dozens of Glendale's little ladies that the offer is repeated to give the many children who did not receive a hot water bottle at the last free offer an opportunity to take advantage of the present one.

CANNED FOODS

Some people in this country seem to live almost entirely on canned foods. The habit is mostly due to laziness, although we must not too severely blame a tired woman who has no help, and more children than she can care for.

Canned foods should never be used except in emergencies, when fresh foods cannot be obtained. They are dangerous. One often hears of ptomaine poisoning from meat, beans, salmon and other canned foods rich in protein. Especially is canned milk dangerous. Once opened even by a small hole in the can it begins to decay with great rapidity, like fish taken out of cold storage. This makes it very objectionable for infants' food, in addition to the fact that, being sterilized, the necessary mineral elements are to a great extent destroyed, making it a starvation food.

Never eat canned foods when you can get anything fresh to eat.

Most of us can plainly hear the echo of the knock of opportunity after it is too late.

COZY HOME PLANNED BY A WOMAN

Miss Louise Stanley of the home economics department of the University of Missouri made this plan for a home she is building in Columbia, says the Washington Star. There are three rooms and a hall on the first floor, with the porch opening from the back of the living-room. Upstairs there are five rooms, bath and sleeping porch. A clothes chute runs from the upstairs hall down to the basement. The soiled linens may be dropped into it from either floor and thus save carrying downstairs.

The woodwork in the hall, living-room and dining-room will be oak. The dining-room will be paneled in oak half way to the ceiling. The buffet will be built in the wall next to the kitchen. To the side of the buffet will be a china closet, very much like the buffet in appearance, that opens into the kitchen.

The kitchen is small and designed to save steps. Between the clothes chute and the china closet, which opens from the dining-room, is the sink, with a shelf on each side. The dishes may be brought to the kitchen door and placed on the shelf. These may be washed at the sink and placed in the kitchen cupboard, which is just next the dining-room. At the end of the cupboard is a shelf, which will hold the gas stove. To the right of the stove is another closet where provisions will be kept. The working space will be about 7x3 feet. The kitchen opens out on to an enclosed porch. The refrigerator, which stands near the kitchen door, will be built in and arranged so that it can be supplied from the outside.

lightful to both gentlemen, as it was sixteen years since they had last met,
having been classmates in school,

Miss Marcella Craft and brother,
Mr. Louis Craft, both well known musicians of Los Angeles, were recent guests of Miss Marjory Duncan

a prettily appointed dinner Wednesday evening complimentary to relatives of both Mr. and Mrs. Fairchild who arrived recently from New York City and are touring California extensively. Cecil Brunner roses were

TRUTH ABOUT THE RAIN

To rail at showers that seem unseasonable is perfectly natural. Coming at inopportune times, so far as creature comfortableness is concerned, interfering with tours, with social functions, and even with elections, one grumbles at them. Yet
the recent rains have been blessings, however thoroughly disguised. They filled a long-felt want that had been becoming more acute. They brought cheer to the rancher and the orchard-ist. They added thousands of dollars to the worth of the year's crops. By glancing at the rain tables one may observe that the winter's precipitation, except at the northern end of the state, where Eureka sits soaked and serene, was far below that of a year before. Somewhat above the normal then, there was no more water than could be utilized to good purpose, or than might have been so utilized had provision been made for preventing it from running, wasted, to the sea. It is more pleasing, of course, to have the rains arrive on their theoretical schedule, and be over and done with so that picnic
raiment may be donned without fear,
and yet if they do not arrive then,
they are none the less beneficent
when they do appear. The indignation aroused is superficial. California knows a good thing, and that after a winter rather short of moisture, it ought to be glad to slosh through a May downpour. The only regrets occasioned are on behalf of visitors who cannot understand that the clouds have been pelting the state with gold.

THE LICENSED JITNEY

Worth, Texas, ordinance regulating the operation of motor cars which carry passengers for a 5-cent fare was upheld by the court of criminal appeal in a test case appealed from fects operators of passenger-carrying automobiles in all parts of the state.

The court, in its decision, overruled
the contention of the plaintiff that the $10 assessed against each operator of the so-called "jitneys" was an

civic progress and the ultimate death
of all true civic aims.

Civic government is necessarily carried on under present arrangements with imperfect instruments.
To say that the civic government of any community is imperfect is simply to say that it is human. True citizens will bear with imperfections that are inherent in humanity and look toward the general result alone as long as it tends to the highest good possible with imperfect instruments.

Like all modern cities, Glendale must aim at civic unity. Citizens of all classes must work for a common end—the development of the Greater Glendale. In working out this ideal it will be found necessary to bear with official mistakes and to accept the sum of each man's work without criticizing too severely each separate act.

That this city has pressing public questions every citizen knows. Those problems will never be solved in the most advantageous way unless all citizens strengthen the hands of official administration and lay aside
all tendency toward criticism deserved or undeserved.

In the struggle toward civic development along the wisest lines individual citizens must sink individual likes and dislikes and uphold at all times, irrespective of private preferences, officials who are earnestly struggling with civic problems.
Only in this way can civic progress
be made.

Let all factions cease to exist. Let every force be brought to bear on the harmonious development of the life of the city. We must widen our vision and build not only for this,
but for future generations. Forces that are now dissipated along a dozen divergent and often opposing lines
must be concentrated so as to effect
the most valuable and enduring results.

With a community spirit of this kind vivifying forces will manifest themselves in every avenue of civic growth. Public opinion will be centralized and available at once for the adoption of wise civic measures.
Errors of judgment in civic administration will become fewer daily and will be set aside in most cases, while public officials will be judged by the general results of their efforts.

This may seem an almost impossible ideal; but where such a spirit prevails it will develop and grow by what it feeds on. Some few cities have already put this spirit in practice and have profited largely by its effects. By studying such striking examples, by adopting their successes and avoiding the points wherein they have failed, Glendale may soon become a shining exponent of modern civic progress. Such a spirit is the spirit of God's universe. The spirit of brotherly love and wide charity toward all.

"Except the Lord build the house,
their labor is lost that build it. Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh in vain."

THE PEACE FLAG

The International Peace Flag is made by placing all the national flags
together on a background of white, the color of the flag of truce. The design used for a banner displayed at the Hague Peace congress in 1913
has three long streamers suspended from a rosette of white ribbon. On two of these streamers fifty miniature national flags are sewed, so that white is around and between them
all. On the center ribbon are the words, "Peace to all nations."

White flags of truce have been used when armies wanted to stop fighting long enough to talk about treaties and peace. The time has come when nations want to stop killing and make world treaties and establish an era of peace. The new flag is the emblem of the new idea, internationalism.

National flags divide nations from each other. The international flag unites, not divides. It is a symbol of world brotherhood.

Let us make peace flags and use them whenever any flags are used,
at public ceremonies and in all the schools.

MRS. DENNEY

The Savannah, Mo., Reporter has the following to say of Mrs. J. L.
Denney, who died in Glendale on April 20:

Sarah Denney, nee Smithers, was born near Fillmore, June 4, 1842,
and died in Glendale, Calif., April 20, 1915. She was married to Joseph L. Denney on February 29, 1872. To this union four children were born.
She united with the M. E. church, South, in 1885. She leaves her husband, two sons, three grandchildren,
a brother, John D. Smithers of St.
Joseph, and a sister, Mrs. Ida Heren of Evanston, Ills. The funeral was conducted by Rev. A. R. Hunt from the Fillmore Christian church Sunday and interment was in the Fillmore cemetery beside the son and daughter, who had preceded her.

Mrs. Denney had lived the greater part of her life in Andrew county until the past few years she and
Mr. Denney had lived in California.
Throughout she had lived a good Christian life, was a kind and loving wife and mother. For thirty years she was in poor health, but bore her suffering with Christian patience and fortitude, and when the final summons came, she was ready and passed away quietly. Her only regret was that she could not see her children and little grandchildren again before passing away.
